It is always a lovely gesture to leave your guests a little gift as they sit for the wedding meal. However, in recent years wedding favours are not always included in couples wedding plans and increasingly couples will opt for a charitable donation instead.

If you are considering giving your guests a small token of your appreciation then this useful checklist enables you to do your research and keep all of the information needed in one place. When considering your wedding favours edible treats are always a success. But also try and include a favour that says something about you as a couple. Perhaps you love the great outdoors and you might include some flower seeds for your guests to grow at home, or you love Sunday mornings in a café together drinking tea, so you might include some tea leaves in a pretty burlap wrap.

Whatever you choose, a beautifully presented and well thought out wedding favour will wow your guests when they take their seats and greatly add to your room décor and chosen theme.
